To see what factors the Library considers when selecting new additions, go to <http://nihlibrary.nih.gov/requestsindex.htm> and click on 'Suggest Book Journal Title'.

Each year the Library also considers which journals should no longer be acquired. This year the Collection Development Team recommended that 54 subscriptions be cancelled for low use. To see a list of cancelled titles, please go to <http://nihlibrary.nih.gov/news/news.html>.

Instruction Program

Due to the enthusiastic response from a pilot group last fall, we've decided to offer more "hands-on classes" for a selected number of offerings. (See courses with an * below.) Participants in these sessions will be seated at computer workstations, given guided instruction and a chance to perform practice exercises. Also, several new courses (see courses marked with an  below) are included in the six full-day series of Electronic Resources Seminars offered twice a month on Thursdays from January through March.

January 7 and February 11

9:00 PubMed
10:30 Web of Science*
1:00 Full Text Electronic Journals
2:30 Reference Manager (Win)

January 21

9:00 Internet Grateful Med
10:30 Cancer Resources on the Web
1:00 Web of Science*
2:30 EndNote Plus (Win)

February 25

9:00 Internet Grateful Med
10:30 Web of Science*
1:00 EndNote Plus (Win)

March 11

9:00 PubMed*

11:00 Searching for Chemistry Information
1:00 Full Text Electronic Journals
2:30 EndNote Plus (Win)

All seminars are offered in the NIH Library Training Room on the Lower Level. No registration is required. However, "Hands-on" classes will be limited to twelve people.

ScienceDirect Update

Beginning in January 1999 full-text access to ScienceDirect journals will be limited to those titles for which NIH has a corresponding print subscription. A small green icon denotes these journals. The Library's Document Delivery Unit has established an account with Elsevier to obtain articles from the Science Direct journals you are no longer able to access directly.

Meet the Staff

Kudos

The NIH Library's Home Page development staff received an ORS Service Excellence Award in recognition of the Library's "commitment to service excellence and demonstration of exceptional customer service by providing the NIH Community full access to biomedical information services through the World Wide Web."

Library staff, in conjunction with several Center for Information Technology staff, also received from ORS a Service Excellence Honorable Mention for successfully partnering to make the Web of Science available to NIH staff.

"Not snow, no, nor rain, ..."

Exemplifying the ancient tribute to work fidelity, the Library's stellar Circulation Team provides dedicated and gracious service to NIH staff 365 days of the year. Members of the Circulation Team providing service at the Library's Circulation Desk are often the first Library staff with whom patrons interact. Circulation Team members include Shirley Wilfork, Circulation Team Leader, and, as she notes with pride, "her guys," Patrick Hanrahan, Kenneth Joholske, Ken Kavanaugh, and Michael Walden.

The Circulation Team is responsible for opening and closing the Library every day, 365 days a year, processing library card applications, creating patron records in the Library catalog, checking in/out Library books, and processing reserve book requests. As one team member commented, "The nature of the work at the desk is fast paced and constant."

Members of the Circulation Team also answer general informational questions, more so when the Information Services Desk is not open weekends, holidays, and after 5:00 on weeknights. When not at the Circulation desk, members of the Circulation Team also provide assistance to the Document Delivery Unit of the Information Delivery Services Section of the Library, helping fill photocopy requests.

However, for all members of the Circulation Team, working at the Circulation Desk, interacting with patrons and other Library staff, is the best part of their workday.

Harrison's Update

Good News. You can now access the online version of Harrison's Principles of Internal Medicine, 14th edition, without using a password. Direct your browser to <http://www.harrisonsonline.com> and choose the Subscriber Log-in option. If you wish to use Harrison's from home or on the road, you will need a CIT Parachute account.
